

Linda Engström

singer * songwriter * artist

Strangled by absence

Waves crashing into this lonely shore
Where there's no harbour anymore and I can't remember where I am
The earth shook beneath my feet as I fell down on to my hands and knees while the blue was taken out of the sky

You mended my heart, you saw me
Like a worn out car you fixed me.

CHORUS:

I will hold a place for you where your memory will live on Even when you're gone you will still linger on I will keep a space for you where you will always be
We will never be apart for you're always in my heart

Consumed by the fire that once nurtured me now it's all I see
For tonight my heaven's turned to hell
What strangles me with its absence, what walks all over my wounded chest
When nothing's there but ghosts of the past

Fate took a turn from the original plan
All that's left of me now is my own two hands.

CHORUS: